

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MIAMI, Fla. -- Kabat, Schertzer, De La Torre, Taraboulos & Company (KSDT), one of the fastest-growing accounting firms in the US, renewed its sponsorship of JD Motorsports with Gary Keller in the Ford EcoBoost 300 on Saturday, Nov. 17, 2018, at the Homestead-Miami Speedway.

Under the terms of the sponsorship agreement, KSDT's logo will be featured on Garrett Smithley's No. 0 Chevrolet Camaro. This is the fourth year that KSDT is participating in the final race weekend of the NASCAR's Championship Weekend and the third year it is sponsoring its hometown speedway.

"Our NASCAR sponsorship can be considered unique in our profession, but we are pleased by the result this strategic partnership has had on growing our business," said KSDT Managing Partner Jeffrey Taraboulos. "The high energy and excitement of NASCAR represents our culture and work ethic, which has helped us to attract some of the best and brightest professionals to our team while also helping us to earn the business of top-tier clients.

Saturday's race will end the Xfinity Series season, and driver Garrett Smithley and team owner Johnny Davis are excited to have KSDT aboard for a very special race.

"Having KSDT join us for Homestead gives us an extra level of energy," Smithley said. "We want to close out the year really strong, and having this support can really make a difference. There's a big spotlight on this race, and having them join us will just make it bigger and better."

Davis, who will have three cars entered in Saturday's race, said first-class sponsorship always is a boost.

"We're thrilled to have KSDT on board," he said. "We enjoy working with partners in various race markets across the country, and it's great to have such a quality south Florida sponsor along for the ride this weekend."
